

Working with GUI and CLI are common but also very different. For me I was able to use GUI perfectly and it was easy to follow for me but when you get into the CLI its sort of its own platform so its quite confusing and intimidating at first. After you start to work around it you seem to figure out that its not that much different. I mean I still seem to struggle with the CLI but I think the more I use it the easier I will get used to it.